

BOWLEE JUNIORS GET KITTED OUT

In a bid to support the local youth football team, Inspired Developments (ID), who is undertaking an intensive regeneration programme in Langley, is donating a brand new kit to help Bowlee Juniors reach the top of their league this season.

Aged between 13 and 14, the players are all Langley residents and managed to reach fifth in last year's league. This season the team will face new competition as they take on the might of the Bury and Radcliffe league, and with their existing kit falling apart at the seams, ID's donation could be just the kick-start they need to propel them into first place this year.

Richard Eveleigh, Bowlee Juniors' manager, says: "Giving children the chance to be constructive with their time was an important factor in the creation of Bowlee Juniors three years ago, and we have welcomed some fantastic dedicated players over this period. As a voluntary group, we are always in need of outside funding, so we are naturally delighted that ID is supporting us.

“This season is set to be an exciting one for us as we enter into a new league that we are confident we can excel in. And with the addition of a new kit, we are sure that team morale will get a much-needed boost and create a sense of unity ahead of our performances on the pitch.”

Denis Maddock, sales and marketing director at ID, says: “We always look to support the communities in which we work, and Bowlee Juniors is a fantastic way of getting children off the streets and into sports. We are thrilled to be able to assist the team on their road to league domination and wish them luck as they enter into their fourth season.”

ID, the regeneration arm of the Seddon Group, is transforming 75 homes on the Langley estate as part of a development designed to revitalise the local area and provide a much needed opportunity for buyers to get onto the housing ladder. Joint group company G&J Seddon Ltd will carry out the building and refurbishment work. All properties are well above the average UK new-build property size, and the first release has already been snapped up by eager buyers. Langley has already been awarded £5million over the next two years as part of a regeneration scheme – the Oldham Rochdale Housing Market Renewal Pathfinder. And with Rochdale enjoying They will all be fully re-decorated, many with an off-road parking space, and levelled and turfed gardens. A 10 year warranty is also provided for buyers’ peace of mind.

Prices start from £76,000

The marketing suite is now open on Bowness Road in Langley, Thursday to Monday, from 10.30 a.m to 5.30 p.m
